A Japanese mosquito-catching plant was exhibited in New York City the other day. The bare mention of such a thing suggests infinite possibilities to the Tribune. "The real name of it is Vincetoxicum acuminatum, but its name is a matter of no consequence. What we should like to know is why it has up to the present time been blushing unseen. In the specimen exhibited every blossom held within its embrace a mosquito, which appeared to be fast beyond possibility of escape. In a little time we may expect to see summer hotels and boarding houses announcing in flaming letters that they are fully equipped with large fields devoted to the cultivation of this plant. Why Japan has concealed the treasure so long is a mystery.

From what we read in the papers about cowboys, one would be justified in believing that they were a rough and vulgar lot. A gentleman just from the West, and who has many cowboys in his employ, surprised as not a little by assuring us that many of these men are well-educated; that they belong to good families, and that many of them are not addicted to profanity or intemperance. He also gave us the important information that a herd of half-wild cattle is as timid and neryous as so many sheep, and that the herders, who fully understand their peculiarities, are accustomed to soothe them, particularly in the night-time, by singing. At the sudden appearance of any strange object, or the sound of any unfamiliar noise, the herd stampede, and when the cattle get running, they are almost as difficult to check as a mountain torrent or a prairie fire. At such times, a part of a cowboy's duty is to ride around and around the "bunch" of cattle, singing a song often a hymn - as melodiously as he can. Gradually the animals are quieted, and come to a halt, and drop down, one by one, till at length they are all asleep, and the weary singer can dismount from his panting horse, and give his own throat a rest.

Canfield Gave Himself up. Richard A. Canfield, who refused to appear as a witness before the Lexow committee, was indicted at New York for misdemeanor. His testimony was expected to reveal important testimony concerning bribes given to the police by gambiers. Canfield is said to be proprietor of a gambling house on West 26th street. He came from Providence, R. I., and surrendered himself. He pleaded not guilty. Bail was fixed at $1.000, which amount he deposited in cash, and was released.

The determination of the president to use the federal troops until the strike is settled has not been changed. If necessary all the regulars in the east will be sent to Chicago. The Northern Pacific railroad was declared military and post road, and orders to so regard it were sent to Generals Merritt and Otis. The troops in all the Eastern forts are held in readiness to proceed to Chicago in mediately after orders may be received. Chicago printers have asked President Cleveland to withdraw federal troops. From 860 to 1000 cars, including many loaded with meat and coal and some Pullmans, bave been burned at Chicago and suburbs by a great mob, who overran the police. The stock yards were invaded by the nob. A signal tower and small depot are in ashes. Part of the destriction of cars was in Kensington and suburles on the Illinois Central, and the militia came just in time to save Pullman village. Two skirmishes occurred along the tracks, an unknown number of persons being wounded by the firing of police and United States deputies.

Besides the great fires just mentioned, the sky was lit up with the glare of flames from the 500 or more freight cars that were burning in the Eldson yards on the Grand Trunk road. A hun Ired police went to the scene with orders to shoot on sight if they were attacked. The loss to the Grand Trunk will be enormous.

The output has been greater than the deliveries and there has been in consequence a further addition to the stock. Without doubt the present week will see a still further increase, espectally if Fall River manufacturers adhere to their present policy of refusing to sell at less than 2 11-16 for 64s. The actual stock on hand must in the aggregate amount to 1,000,000 pieces, though but 800,000 are reported. Shutting down for a few weeks by various mills is looked for from this time on, while a general stoppage of machinery is expected before September. The sales of the week week have been 31,000 spots and 47,000 futures the stock on hand increasing by some 21,000

The twelfth week of the King Philip Mill strike has been passed, and as far as outside appearances go both sides are firm. Agent Chase has, however, started up 110 beems during the week. He is short of warps at present, and until he gets a sufficient number ahead will probably not be anxious to take in weavers. Mr. Chase desires to start up the eard room first, and here is where his trouble lies. If he gets this department go ing in good shape, he can set going a greater number of looms. The spinners have no quarrel with the King Phillip corporation. The bonus was taken off their wages, and they accepted the price list which put them on the same footing as splaners on a similar kind of work in other mills. The weavers, carders and loom fixers are very stubborn in their resistance to their out down. The strike has cost the various unions $12,000, and a large sum has been paid out o the non-unionists who left work with those affiliated with the different associations. One committee of weavers has failed to do anything in the way of a successful conference. Arbitration has been suggested, but practically nothing done about it. Now, however, the Amalgamated Union which emprises the five associations of mill ployes, has taken the matter up.

BOSTON WHOLESALE MARKETS.

To make the following quotations of value to buyer and seller alike, it will be necessary to carefully note the prefatory remarks which precede all articles quoted. In a mar ket of this character it is impossible to give prices for every day of the week, but noting the general tendency of trade, those gives will be found sufficiently close to emble dealers to base their transactions thereon.

The strike situation has had a tendency to raise prices in meatstuffs, but has not raised the quotations, to the point expected by many There is a good supply of beef on hand, enough to last for several days, and this with local products and the small amount consumed during the heated term has kept prices nearly normal. Pork products feel the effect of the labor trouble, and no hams have been received from Chicago or Kansas city since the inception of the strike. The end is hardly in sight, and those who have a good supply are offering at slightly increased figures, Lambs and mutton are scare, and the market is a trifle higherthan at last quotations. The butter market is quiet. Movements are slight and prices are practically stationary. Cheese maintains its firm tone, as do eggs. Potaoes are in full supply, with arrivals of the new product in sufficient quantity to become a factor in quotations. The market on all sorts of fish is fairly well supplied, with quotations about steady. Flour is duli and the market is easy. Wheat dull and lower, and the trade is paying very little attention to flour. There is some interest in getting flour forward, however, Quotations are not changed. Cornmeal is quiet and unchanged. Oatmeal is no lower, on the rather easier position of oats as a whole. There are no market changes in spice and other housewife ommodities, and the general trend of the market in other than meats and provisions is to remain stationary. The strike, however, may cause aserious upsetting of calculations, for the local supply in many necessaries is nough only to carry the market on its pres nt basis for a few days.
